

Editorial

Jakub KRAUS, Ph.D.

Editor-in-Chief

Head of Department of Air Transport, CTU in Prague

Dear readers,

the society is changing. And it is changing very fast. In next ten years, everything will be probably accessible through the internet and there will be complete change in approach to gathering knowledge. In the past, when someone wanted to know something, he had to find the book with answers. When we look even further back in time, he had to find the man who knew it. Today, the internet with the metasearchers is a fast tool to get the information. Unfortunately, this instant access to knowledge has also a backside. When you know where the information is and being sure that nobody will or even can delete it, moreover considering that you can access it anytime, you have no need to remember it. This can have long-term consequences, because when you have not too much in your memory, how can you link information together, how can you think about something new? We will see and live the future, where the generation that is born in these days will take the drive and we hope, that research will still exists so as the need of human to do it.

Jakub Kraus | Editor-in-Chief